

Sergio Brutti is Associate Professor of Physical Chemistry at Sapienza University of Rome. He leads the ENAM research group on electrochemical energy storage systems, including lithium-ion, beyond-lithium, and solid-state batteries. Principal Investigator of MOST CN4 Spoke 13 and NEST initiatives, his research addresses sustainable materials and circular economy solutions. He has authored 189 peer-reviewed publications with over 4700 citations.