

Francesco Bonaccorso biography

Francesco Bonaccorso is the co-founder and scientific director of BeDimensional S.p.A. He gained the PhD from the University of Messina. In 2009 he was awarded a Royal Society Newton International Fellowship at Cambridge University, and elected to a Research Fellowship at Hughes Hall, Cambridge, where he also obtained a MA. He was responsible in defining the ten years scientific and technological roadmap for the European Graphene Flagship, covering the role of Deputy of the Innovation for 6 years. He is currently member of the Executive Board of the Innovative Advanced Materials Initiative (IAM-I). He is/was involved in tens of European/National projects as coordinator or principal investigator. He is author of 19 patent families and more than 250 publications that have been cited more than 49100 times, with an H-index of 80. He delivered more than 260 invited presentations worldwide. He was featured as 2016 Emerging Investigator by J. Mater. Chem. A and in 2019 by ChemPlusChem. In 2018 he was recognized as Highly cited Scientist by Clarivate Analytics. In 2019 he received the Magister Peloritanius by Accademia Peloritana dei Pericolanti and ExAllievi Eccellenti by the University of Messina. In 2022 he received, as co-founder of BeDimensional S.p.A., the Premio Mercurio from the Italian Embassy in Germany. He also co-founded Cambridge Graphene Ltd.

