

Javier Sanfelix – CV

Javier Sanfelix, Ph.D. in engineering science in the field of analysis of environmental and economic impacts of batteries for electric vehicles. He is currently working as a research policy officer at the European Commission's Industrial Transformation Unit (DG Research and Innovation) dealing, among other activities, with research policies in the area of safety and sustainability of chemicals and materials. He has previously worked at the European Commission's Joint Research Centre, providing scientific support for sustainable product production and consumption policies, focusing on circular economy aspects.