

Short Bio:

Claudia Venditti is a Chemical Engineering researcher in the DICMA department at Sapienza University of Rome. She holds a PhD in Chemical Processes for Industry and Environment, where her studies focused on fluid dynamics and theoretical transport phenomena. Her main research field includes microfluidics, advanced separation processes, and numerical modeling of physical and chemical systems.